

Gentlemen Still Prefer Blondes

Marilyn Monroe left an indelible legacy – an unmatched collection of classic comedies, an unforgettable screen presence and persona and a drama-filled life that puts Britney to shame. After her mom was thrown in an asylum, she married the boy next door (Jim Dougherty), the jock (Joe DiMaggio), the brain (Arthur Miller) and got to have a sexy tête-à-tête with both Kennedy hotties (separately, of course). Now you can have Marilyn with dinner, courtesy of "The Velvet Collection" from Marilyn Wines (marilynwines.com). The palate-pleasing merlot-cab blend arrives ready for her close-up wearing a wispy wrap over her coveted parts from the infamous centerfold in Hef's very first issue of Playboy. Unwrap Marilyn this fall. Tyler Steele
